Task

Consider the position of Group HSE Specialist and how you would relaunch an existing programme across all sites in the UK and Ireland (ROI).

Our Good Saves programme was originally launched during 2018 and is the platform used across all our sites for reporting near misses and hazardous situations.

The programme has recently been refreshed to include the addition of QR Codes so that electronic reporting is available.

1. What strategy would you use to engage and assure commitment to the roll out of the new materials?
2. What challenges do you think you will face and how would you overcome them?

Appendix 1 lists all of DCC Vital sites located within UK and ROI

How to gain commitment to the rollout of the new Good Saves programme

- Request a sign off by the Board of Directors and EHS committee members from all DCC Vital sites
- Consult with managers, supervisors and HSE coordinators on rollout procedures across all sites
- Notify employees via Safety F1rst communications, emails, EHS Standards bulletins and newsletters
- Include in Health and Safety Induction training for new employees and contractors
- Place Good Saves QR Codes and instructions for use near entrances and main notice boards at all sites

- Training videos include scanning methods using smartphones and iPads
- The Good Saves QR Code is seen on posters, the intranet, newsletters and bulletins
- Good Saves updates by EHS coordinators can be easily viewed online by employees using the intranet
- Electronically recorded Good Saves improves staff access to Learning from Events

Challenges of implementing a QR Code to Good Saves

- Monitoring the effective use of a QR Code by staff will need managing
- Reporting on Good Save using the QR Code can be reviewed at EHS committee meetings and management reviews
- Opportunities to improve accident, incident and near miss reporting rely on efficient use of Good Save reporting
- Ensure that employees and contractors on all sites within the DCC Vital Group are trained to report on Good Save
- Competency checks on employee use of the QR Code can be included in audits
