

Case Study: Accredited Training Delivery (NEBOSH & IOSH)

I regularly deliver accredited health and safety training, including the NEBOSH General and Construction Certificates and IOSH Managing Safely, through leading providers such as Astutis and TSW. My approach blends technical expertise with an engaging, learner-centred delivery style, ensuring participants not only pass exams but also gain genuine competence and confidence in applying what they've learned.

My name is independently listed on Coursecheck, where I consistently receive high ratings for making complex subjects relatable, practical, and relevant to learners across a wide range of industries. Delegates often highlight the way I explain legislation and risk principles in a clear, real-world context, helping them understand their responsibilities and apply solutions within their workplace.

Training is delivered via both classroom and virtual platforms, using Microsoft Teams and Zoom to reach learners across the UK and internationally. Whether face-to-face or online, my sessions prioritise engagement, clarity, and real-world application — helping to raise competency and improve workplace safety outcomes.
